How it works

The Continual Support Agreement specifies the particular list of issues Interlegal provides to Customer legal advice on

Interlegal assigns an executive on Customer's continual support who is available 24/7, and is responsible for timely weekly informing Customer on every Developments and changes in the project

On every particular request from Customer the assigned Interlegal's executive forms an experts team to work on the project, including a partner, a senior lawyer, an associate and a junior lawyer

Customer on his/her part assigns an executive on the continual support who is copied in by all Customer's correspondence, and is exclusively authorised to communicate instructions to Interlegal's team

Advantages of continual support

You obtain an additional team of 50+ lawyers with various areas of expertise who confront every day dozens of most complicated legal situations

You lower your expenses on legal advice comparing to that sought on a rush basis

Your company gets an appointed executive of Interlegal who would help to see legal risks from any decision in order to prevent them on an early phase

You receive another protection by the conflict of interests, i.e. Interlegal would decline requests aimed against the companies indicated as affiliated with Customer
